Part of Top Pommard and Volnay 2022 wines en primeur
Drinking Window: 2027 - 2055

The team's work at Domaine de la Commaraine is truly exciting, and the potential can be seen in this sample blend of the new vintage. The wine boasts a forward, luxurious blackberry and pomegranate aroma with hints of violets, spice, and smoke. The texture is lush and dense but abundant with well-managed tannins, substantial extract, and an immensely long finish. The grapes are from the eponymous 3.63-hectare Clos, although some have been declassified by régisseur Paul Krug, who formerly worked with Pedro Para. This domaine is definitely one to watch.

Creamy, exotic, and long, this wine boasts aromas of nectarine passionfruit and ripe pear with an edge of beeswax and spice. The texture is dense, but enough acidity keeps the wine in dynamic balance. The domaine has recently purchased a parcel of 1.57 hectares in this prime location high above Montrachet. The vineyard is not without issues, with one-third of the vines missing and the team is replanting a large swath of vines, but to judge from this result, this offering will be one to watch.

This deeply-coloured wine is fragrant with ripe black cherry fruit aromas and hints of violets, earth, and spice. The texture is supple and silky, but a firm tannic grip lurks in the background, driving the wine to a lovely finish. The grapes come from 0.15 hectares in two small parcels; they were completely destemmed, and the long, slow fermentation finished above 30°C. There was very little punching down and even less sulphur. The result is a marvellous success, and the wine is still ageing in cask (half new).
